In the News

4/8/2009: Bradshaw Medical, Inc. announced earlier today that they were granted an approval for their Torque Limiting & One Way Ratcheting Mechanism, utility patent US 7,516,676. This is the twelfth patent granted to Bradshaw Medical since May 2007. "This recent innovation with our all-in-one torque-limiting and one-way ratcheting mechanism is another example of BMI's commitment to leading the development charge in the spinal and orthopedic instrumentation field. By combining both torque-limiting and ratcheting features into one mechanism, the need for two separate devices in the operating room has been eliminated therefore reducing overall instrument expense to the OEM's we serve and improving the time it takes for the attending surgeon to perform a procedure." stated Guy Bradshaw, CEO.
