Bradshaw Medical Announces New Utility Patent

Comfort T-Handle with Ratcheting (center) and Non-Ratcheting (side) Internal 1/4" Sq. Adapter and Impactor Cap

02/08/12 Kenosha, WI: Bradshaw Medical, Inc. (BMI) announced earlier today that they were issued utility patent US 8,109,181 B2 for their Ratcheting Screwdriver, developed by Dr. Hua Gao, Vice President of Research and Development. This achievement brings BMI to a total of 22 patents to date (with additional patents pending).

“This is a very important patent for our business,” stated Dr. Gao. “The BMI ratcheting mechanism has proven time after time to be the most innovative throughout the orthopedic market with the finest and most balanced ratcheting mechanism. Our ratcheting instrumentation also has the optional benefit of a positive locking cap feature, which is an industry first.”

At BMI, we are committed to supporting our customers' most demanding requirements by delivering cost effective, reliable and quality solutions of strategic value with the foundation of best-in-class customer service and technical support.

Extreme Handle with Ratcheting 1/4" Sq. Adapter. Shown with optional silicone ring and collar.
